

Sheepshead Bay Celebrates The Life Aquatic

Sheepshead Bay overflowed with dynamic sailing and diving demonstrations, aquatic exhibits, plus live marine musical acts as visitors embraced the borough's liquid jewel by heading over to Bay Fest 2005. The 13th annual celebration of the waterfront community – presented by the Bay Improvement Group (BIG) – drew mom, dad and the kids to enjoy a day of crowd-pleasing attractions and activities along Emmons Avenue.

Continued on page 35

"King Neptune," better known as local activist Ed Eisenberg, engages a group of revelers at Bay Fest.

A diver emerges from the water after a conducting an underwater demonstration.

Photos by Steve Solomonson

A curious group of visitors check out "Aibo" the robotic dog from Sony.

Renowned band "Stout" perform a medley of their hit songs.

This Is Your Gift

Spring Revelers Flock to Bayfest 2005

Continued from page 33

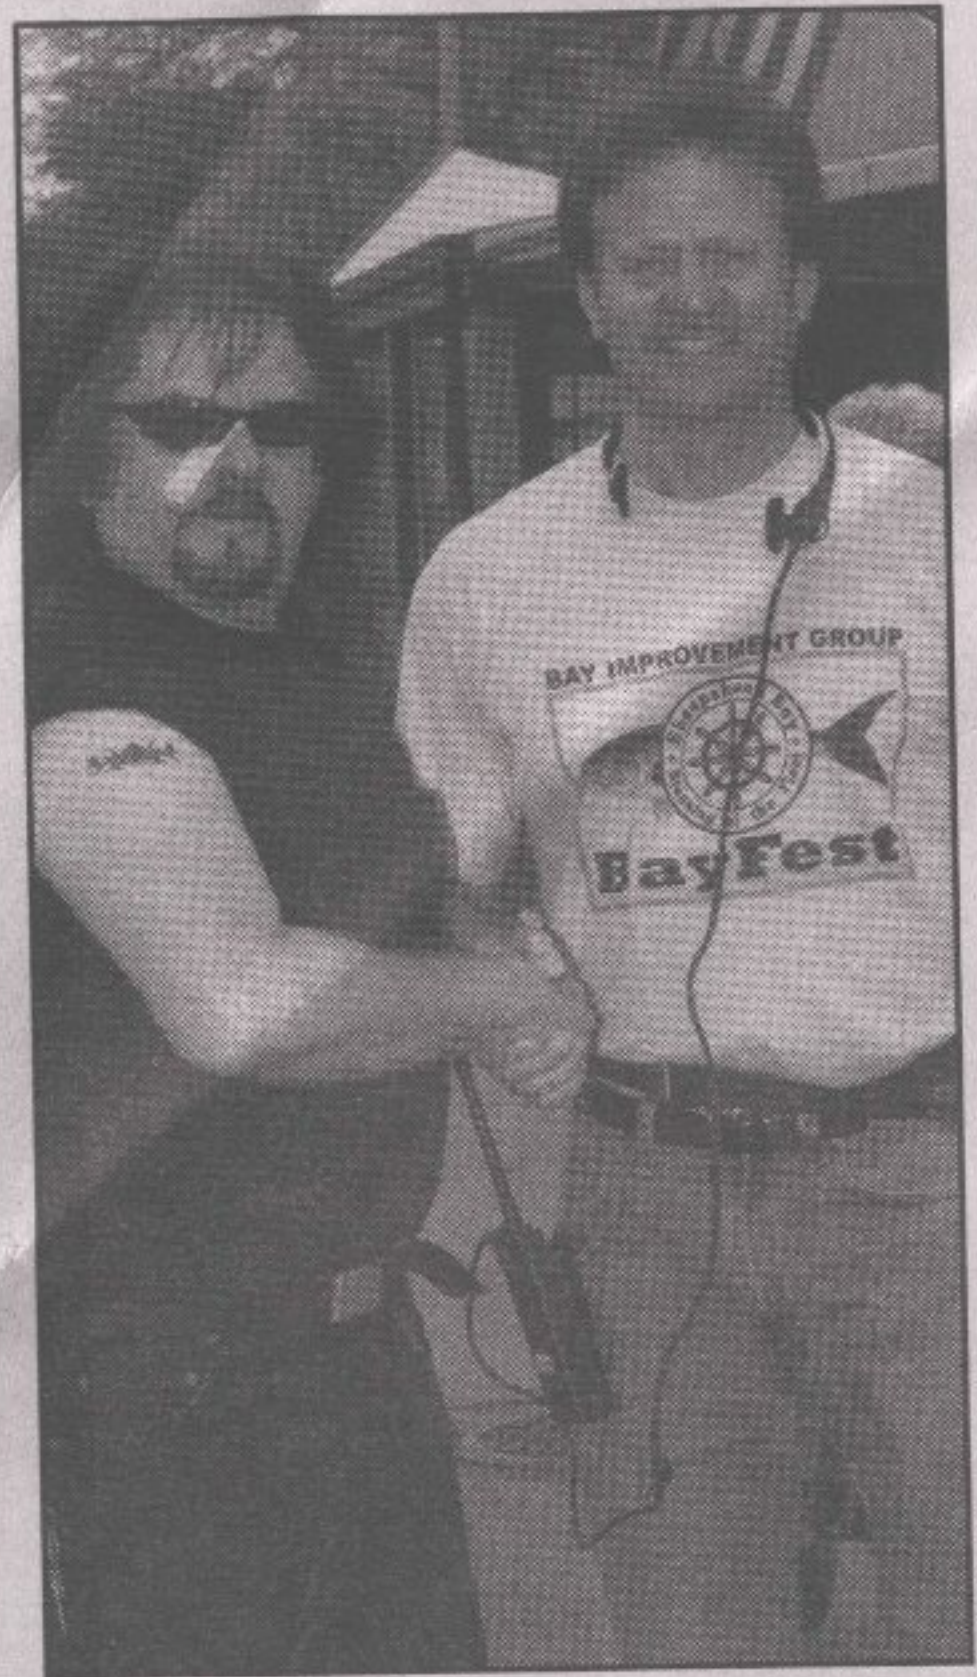

Strolling performers, games, plus exhibits from the New York Aquarium and Brooklyn Children's Museum representative Cindy Jean-Pierre exhibits a Columbian Red Tail Boa.

Brooklyn Children's Museum, and an outdoor arts and crafts show kept the hordes happy.

In addition, local groups manned information booths, acquainting visitors with available services in the community.

Bay Improvement Group President Steve Barrison (right) greets legendary crooner Vince Martell.

Photos by Steve Solomonson